

Filipino — Paa, Tuhod, Balikat, Ulo Feet, Knees, Shoulders, Head

> embracingdiversity.bpl.bc.ca

Although the tune is different and the order of actions is reversed, this Filipino song is similar to “Head, Shoulders, Knees and Toes.”

Paa, Tuhod, Balikat, Ulo

Paa, tuhod, balikat, ulo

Paa, tuhod, balikat, ulo

Paa, tuhod, balikat, ulo

Pumadyak tayo at magpalakpakan

Feet, Knees, Shoulders, Head

Feet, knees, shoulders, head

Feet, knees, shoulders, head

Feet, knees, shoulders, head

Stamp your feet and clap your hands

About Filipino

Filipino is a standardized form of Tagalog and one of the two official languages of the Philippines (the other is English). Did you know that young people in the Philippines are educated in three languages? They learn a local language, Tagalog, and English.